Summary of Vstreet Features & Curricula

Vstreet.com

Vstreet.com is a Web site that provides life and social skills training for teens in basic areas: jobs, mental health, health, sex education, and money management. It is intended to be a fun site for teens of different backgrounds and abilities by teaching life skills using animated stories, cartoons, and interactive exercises. It is also intended to create community for its teen users and their centers.

Vstreet's General Features

- Vstreet Administration – Administrators from each center have their own Virtual Office where they can perform key functions on the site, including: registering users, managing account information, and customizing features. The administrator can turn on or off any of the main features on Vstreet if they are being abused.
- Safe Community – Vstreet is a closed community, available only to those users who are registered by their center. Users create their own unique login names and passwords to access the site. All personal information stored on Vstreet is confidential and accessible only to the user and the administrator(s).
- Virtual Room – Each user has a Virtual Room on Vstreet. It is the gateway to the site's other features. Teens can decorate their room in their own personal style by selecting, for example, various lighting fixtures, furniture styles, and floor coverings.

Vstreet.com Soft Skills Curricula

Vstreet has full-length animated curricula on a variety of skills:

- Options to Anger – This course helps youth understand the anger cycle, identify early warning signs and their emotions, build communication skills with “I” statements, and other anger management skills. The curriculum integrates live group sessions with a virtual group of animated teens that model the live meetings. Options to Anger includes interactive journaling activities and exercises.
- Efficacy: Your Secret Power for Decision Making – A follow-up curriculum to Options to Anger, Efficacy teaches teens strategies for problem-solving and accomplishing goals in life. CD and DVD interactive activities provide 11 instructional meetings and 3 additional sessions for extended role-playing exercises. Topics covered include risky thinking, costs and benefits analysis, empathy, active listening, and refusal and negotiation skills.
- Take This Job and Keep It – This animated program teaches teens the social and practical skills they need to retain a job. Topics covered include: getting to work on time, dress codes, communication, managing conflict with co-workers and supervisors, and understanding employee documents. Designed to be taught in four 50-minute classes, the curriculum provides step-by-step instruction with suggestions for discussions and activities, along with samples of a job description, employee manual, and employment contract.
- Take This Job and Keep It! Take 2 – This animated program teaches teens the social and practical skills they need to retain a job. Topics covered include: getting to work on time, dress codes, positive communication skills, managing conflict with co-workers and supervisors, understanding and coping with harassment, and understanding employee documents. Designed to be taught in eight 45-minute sessions, the curriculum provides step-by-step instruction with suggestions for discussions and activities, along with samples of a cover letter, resume, job announcement, job description, employee manual, and employment contract.
- Career Spins – This animated curriculum, introduces career exploration and why finding a career track is important. Viewers answer 20 visual questions about their likes and dislikes which generates a printable list of potential career tracks. Job Spins, a follow-up curriculum that takes the student from discovering a career track to finding the first job is currently in production.
- Car Dreams – This practical curriculum addresses what to look for in a car and how to be a smart buyer. It also covers inspections, road testing, insurance, and titles.

Job Corps Employment, Training and Administration Standards-Competencies Crosswalk

- Apartment Hunt – This highly interactive curriculum helps youth understand all the steps to finding a place to live. Activities include building a “wants and needs” list, budgeting, and lease agreements. The animated story features two teen girls looking for an apartment. They check the condition and safety of several apartments before negotiating a lease on one that is right for them.
- Private Lives – A curriculum on HIV and STDs that covers everything from condom use to visiting a clinic. This curriculum also includes an interactive game to help youth identify which STDs are viruses and which are bacteria.
- Money Medical – This comprehensive curriculum helps teens learn the skills and discover the attitudes that put them in charge of their money with interactive lessons on budgeting, banking, credit and loans, credit counseling, and smart spending. Also examined are unhealthy money attitudes and spending behaviors.

Vstreet.com Networking And Social Interaction Features

Vstreet is designed to get users involved in their center’s community. Each Job Corps center can have a unique community that helps build social skills from the day new students set foot on campus to years after they leave. Some Vstreet features used to build social skills include:

- Calendar – Job Corps centers can use this as their hub of activity by entering community events for all users. This encourages youth to look up events on their calendar. Teens can enter personal events, reminders of special days, and their own class schedule to build time management skills. They can also read their daily horoscope (based on life skills) for any day of the year.
- Address Book – The address book includes a Personal Address Book that each user creates, as well as a Master Address Book with Vstreet user names and email addresses for all youth and staff in their Vstreet community. Additional information can be entered. This feature allows Job Corps graduates to find other graduates after they leave the center. The address book also has various search features that allow a new campus member to find and connect with others with the same interests.
- Personal Journal – The Personal Journal is a confidential place where users can write their daily thoughts. It is protected with its own private password and a screen scramble button. For users who want inspiration, there’s a Mood Mirror. They can pick a mood and click on a Questions button that will prompt their thoughts.
- Bulletin Board – Teens can participate in text discussions on just about anything. All Vstreet-wide posts are monitored by Vstreet staff. Job Corps staff can also set up and monitor their own bulletin board for community topics. This feature allows students to speak out and share their opinions and ideas.
- Email – Each registered user gets a unique Vstreet email address. The email on Vstreet has the same look as the rest of the site and is designed to build communication and networking skills. The email is tied to the address book, allowing for easy emailing to other students.
- Chat – Vstreet Chat is designed to be open, yet safe. Scheduled chats, which are arranged by the center, can be entered only by students from the scheduling center’s community. Centers are responsible for monitoring their own chats.

Other Supportive Vstreet Features

- Urgent Help Button – By clicking on this button, teens can get immediate access to national help hotlines on important issues like domestic violence, sexuality, health, and abuse. Administrators can add their own community hotlines and arrange for users to send urgent emails to staff. This feature is especially important for post-campus life, allowing communication to flow from graduates to the staff.
- Getting Ready e-Zines – Located on the Vstreet Getting Ready Newsstand, these 19 interactive life skills magazines contain teen interviews, animated ‘toons, art and poetry.
- “On Vstreet” Soap – A group of virtual teens that live “On Vstreet” are featured in soap-opera type episodes in which they model important life skills such as dealing with roommates, employers, landlords, and friends. Soaps are interactive; the virtual teens ask viewers for their input on the issues they’re dealing with. This is an excellent base for discussing common roommate or job retention problems.
- Art and Poetry – This feature encourages youth to express and share their creativity in art and poetry. Youth can submit drawings, photographs or poetry to Vstreet. Any of the pictures from the gallery of peer-generated art can be selected and hung them in teens’ own Virtual Room. Poetry 4 Ya Mind features poems written by Vstreet users.

Job Corps Employment, Training and Administration Standards-Competencies Crosswalk

- Checking In – This feature allows centers to maintain a connection with youth who are no longer at the center so that youth can continue to receive support, and centers can gather information needed for evaluating program outcomes. All personal information gathered for checking in purposes is kept confidential and is forwarded to the center by email.
- Personal File Cabinet – This feature stores personal information developed by users through the social skills curricula as well as non-Vstreet applications. Users can see their work, print it, change it, and download it to their own computer. Users can store existing documents, file and retrieve them at any time. Instructors can place assignments and information in a student's file cabinet for retrieval and completion by the student.
